TO THE PUBLIC.

B. & T. Kite having purchased of John A. Paxton, late editor of the Philadelphia Directory, his right to the work, and it being their intention to issue it annually, they have to request that all removals may be made known to them as soon as convenient. It will obviate many difficulties they now labour under, and be a means of making the work more correct.—The persons employed to note the residence of the families, it must be admitted, are liable to err, particularly in the spelling: to counteract the effects of which, references are made to names whose pronunciation are similar. Yet with all the care which has been taken, it cannot be expected that the work will be entirely perfect. To those acquainted with the frequent removals in large cities, no apology will be deemed requisite on this head. But though many errors may be found, let it also be recollected that a variety of information is furnished. The present edition contains, exclusive of the residence of the inhabitants, much matter interesting to the citizens at large. A correct list of the civil officers of the national Government, and the Representatives in Congress from the different states are contained in it, and also the names of the officers and representatives of the state of Pennsylvania, of the city officers and councils, together with such extracts from the Revenue Laws as were deemed of consequence to be generally known.

☞ For names not found in the body of the work, see list of "late removals, &c."

There are alternate references from the names that sound alike, throughout the work; viz. Allison, see Ellison; or Ellison, see Allison.

The reader will please to observe the following general rule for finding the numbers on houses, in the different streets in this city. In those streets that run east and west, say High street, the numbers begin from the Delaware, the odd being on the north side. In those that run north and south, say Fourth street, the numbers begin from High street, running north and south, the odd being on the east side.

PATENTS.

Patents are obtained by application to the Secretary of State, for any new invention, discovery or improvement. The applicant is the only judge by law, of the propriety of the application, and a Patent is not to be considered as any evidence of the efficacy or goodness of the invention; discovery or improvement, nor any exclusion of the rights of others. It only secures rights from infringement.—A patent can only be granted for one invention, discovery or improvement. It is granted for fourteen years. The applicant, if a citizen, takes legally, an oath or affirmation, ‘that he does verily believe that he is the true inventor or discoverer of the said improvement;’ if not a citizen, but having resided two years in the country, he adds, ‘and that to the best of his knowledge, the same hath not been used or known in this or any foreign country.’—He transmits a certificate signed by any respectable individual, of his citizenship, or residence for two years. He gives in writing a specification of the discovery, invention or improvement, as short but explicit as he can; explaining by words, not only the invention or improvement, but its use and advantage, without any reference to a drawing or model, for the specification enters into and makes part of the letters patent.—This must be signed before two witnesses. A drawing must also be sent if the subject admit of one, with explanatory references: and if the complexity of the invention or improvement should render the drawing and explanation, insufficient for the full comprehension of the subject, a model will also be required. It is material that these be executed in a manner not unworthy public inspection; for at the expiration of the patent, they may, if thought worthy, be made public. If two persons apply at the same time for patents, and the Secretary of State thinks their discoveries, inventions or improvements interfere, an arbitrator may be chosen by each of the applicants, and if they cannot agree, an umpire may be chosen by the Sec’y of State, to determine who is the first inventor.

The fees and emoluments of consuls, as established by law, (excepting those in the Barbary States,) and which of course extends to commercial agents, are as follows, viz.

For authenticating under the consular seal, every protest, declaration, deposition or other act, which any captain, master, mariner or other citizen of the United States may respectively choose to make, the sum of two dollars.

For the taking into possession, inventorying, selling and finally settling and paying, or transmitting the ballance due on personal estate, left by any citizen of the United States, who shall die within the limits of his consulate, five per cent. on the gross amount of such estate.

For taking into possession, and otherwise proceeding on any such estate which shall be delivered over to the legal representative, before a final settlement of the same, two and a half per cent. on such part delivered over as shall not be in money, and five per cent. on the gross amount of the residue.

For administering oaths or affirmations to the principal officers of a vessel confirming the landing of merchandise where he shall reside, twenty-five cents for each; and for certifying the delivery of such merchandise, from every such vessel, one dollar.
